

Declaration of ethics and best practices.

PoliPapers is the service provided by the Editorial UPV and the UPV Library which encourages open publishing digital journals. PoliPapers considers its duty to promote the transmission of scientific knowledge, ensuring its rigor and quality, under the ethical commitment of the scientific and academic communities. The protocols and guidelines described make reference to the Code of Conduct for editors of scientific journals that established the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE: Committee on Publication Ethics).

Duties and responsibilities

PoliPapers commits to:

- assuring the quality of the material published
- guaranteeing freedom of expression
- maintaining the academic integrity of the content, ensuring that the published material follows internationally accepted ethical norms
- publishing corrections, clarifications, retractions and apologies when needed

Obligations of authors

Authors must guarantee the authorship of the documents presented (e.g. texts, images). Authorship corresponds to those who have made a significant contribution to the work. If the work has significant contributions from more than one author, these contributors should appear as co-authors.

Authors must provide contact information in order to facilitate communication with other researchers in relation to their published work. This contact information will appear with the published work.

Originality and plagiarism

Authors must ensure that they have obtained permission to publish any images or other materials presented in their work, as well as having exercised the right to quote, thus complying with the intellectual property laws of Spanish legislation.

Those manuscripts in which plagiarism is detected will be rejected. Likewise, an author should not submit originals to describe essentially the same work as previously published.

Peer review process

The decision of the editorial board to accept or reject a paper for publication is based only on the importance of the work, originality and clarity, as well as the relevance of the study in relation to the editorial.

Any material submitted for publication will be considered confidential while under review, and, in the case of rejection, no evaluator can publish the original.

The evaluators' identities must be protected at all times, ensuring their anonymity.

Complaints

PoliPapers should respond promptly to complaints.

In any case, if the individuals involved are unable to satisfy their claims, they have the right to raise their protests to higher authorities.

Protecting individual data

PoliPapers guarantees the confidentiality of individual information. It is the authors' responsibility to obtain authorizations to publish images and trademarks used in their work, and any other personal data (e.g. age, sex, social status of study participants).

Monitoring malpractice

PoliPapers accepts the obligation to act accordingly in cases of suspected malpractice or misconduct. Any manuscripts that raise questions about possible misconduct will be rejected.

PoliPapers will make every reasonable effort to ensure that the manuscripts submitted for evaluation are rigorous and ethically appropriate.

Integrity and academic rigor

Any time a published article is suspected of containing major misstatements or misleading or distorted information, it must be corrected immediately.

Any manuscript whose content is found to be fraudulent will be removed immediately from the indexing systems and it will not be available for reading.

Complaints

Any author, reader or reviewer may send complaints by mail to PoliPapers:
